

The amazing and fast evolution of Covid-19

The main problem in the whole world since 2019, has been the arrival of the Covid-19, terrible virus which has contaminated a lot of people, and caused a pandemic. It started in China, at the end of 2019 and evolved very quickly all around the world.

Covid-19 is a virus which can be transmitted very easily with each person in contact with it. The virus contaminated all the world, continent by continent. It caused a lot of problems for everybody. However, the government tried to establish rules to control this pandemic. The first decision was to close all public places like restaurants, museums, cinema... for less contact with the virus. The Covid didn't stop and kept growing despite the different adaptations. Covid evolved so much and created variants like the UK variant or African variant. The government had to put a lock-down for workers and students, because they enabled the virus to spread when they met other persons or friends, and forced as many people as possible to stay at home. The USA, for example, reached about 36 870 000 cases during 2020. At school, students had to participate to online classes on different apps, like Zoom and Discord. Teachers also used robots equipped with a tablet at students height for reality video work. Workers who could, had to work remotely too.

The government had to find solutions against the Covid-19 pandemic like, surgical masks, social distancing for everybody with online classes, remote work. Breakthroughs appeared like the solution hook but mainly the vaccine. It was compulsory for everybody who wants to work and travel. People agree with it because they think it was benefit for us and it was a solution, but many people were against because we don't know what there is in it. A new app by Essex Laboratory which was created, to analyze our caught to know if we had the virus.

To finish, all of this adaptations calmed down and stopped Covid-19 from growing because people met less others and also contaminated less people. It was examples of solutions but the Covid make 3 waves of pandemic and why not another for now?

Covid-19 is a contaminating virus which touched all the world and keeps growing in places where there aren't adaptations but scientists and hospital personal swear it will end soon.

Unfortunately, it's not the only bad things which happened in the world. We have also, happened in 2020:

The Violence Between the Farmers and the Government !

Currently, the Indian farmers are getting very angry and are protesting against the government. What went wrong in the past, to make the farmers so angry? Above all, we will see what happened.

In September 2020, the disaster began. The government creates new agriculture laws that were set up to boost incomes, to modernize agriculture and finally to promote corporations.

On the one hand, there are more than 50,000 farmers protesting to repeal the new laws.

In order to do so, they have blocked the streets, driven tractors into security barriers, and camped on the highways. We can clearly see how much anger they feel.

On the other hand, the authorities don't stay there. While the farmers are protesting, the Police gets violent. They throw tear gas at the protestants, not only that they also throw water canons at them, but there are even mass arrest.

Fortunately, the Indian farmers are not alone. The USA support the government's laws, as opposed to the American citizens who do not agree. American citizens have decided to raise their voice to support the Indian farmers. It especially aims at the western farmers who feel very concerned.

Still, the Indian farmers do not just stay there doing nothing. They have also created slogans to make their thoughts deeper, some like... "No farmers, no food!" but also "We are farmers not a terrorist".

To sum up, the violence between the farmers and the government are very important in the history of 2020.
